Statement from the Integrity Commission regarding the Judgment Delivered in the Case of Morjorn Wallock v Integrity Commission

On June 2, 2025, the Supreme Court ruled in favour of the Integrity Commission in the matter of Morjorn Wallock v. Integrity Commission, refusing all reliefs sought by the claimant, Ms Morjorn Wallock regarding the Integrity Commission's investigation into alleged irregularities surrounding the approval of a residential development at 11 Charlemont Drive, Kingston 6.

Ms Wallock, former Director of the Legal and Enforcement Division at the National Environment and Planning Agency (NEPA), sought judicial review of the Integrity Commission's decisions regarding her role in the approval process surrounding construction of the residential development.

Ms. Wallock sought several orders in her judicial review claim, including removal of the findings of the Integrity Commission and her formal exoneration, all of which were refused. The Court ruled that the investigation process was fair and did not breach the rules of natural justice, the Commission's conduct of the investigation was not unreasonable, irrational or procedurally improper, the adverse findings made against Ms. Wallock in the report were not unreasonable or irrational, and the Commission did not exceed its lawful authority under the Integrity Commission Act.
